

Rehabilitation for people with an acquired brain injury

Neurological physiotherapy aims to improve the mobility of people with an acquired brain injury such as may result from a stroke or motor vehicle accident. Improvement can continue for several years.

Lauren Wade of Sydney Neurological Physiotherapy is committed to improving the long term physical outcome of people with an acquired brain injury. To this end, Lauren provides a domiciliary physiotherapy service for people of all levels of ability requiring rehabilitation after:

- Traumatic brain injury
- Stroke
- Other forms of acquired brain injury

Lauren has over 20 years experience in rehabilitation and works with the client, their family and/or attendant carers to:

- Establish realistic and relevant goals
- Provide sitting, standing up, walking and running training
- Provide upper limb re-training
- Train safe manual handling techniques
- Supervise gym programs
- Provide maintenance programmes and 'top up' therapy
